Integrating operations creates approximately 200 new jobs, expands selection, and drives faster delivery for Central New York

SYRACUSE, N.Y.--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- Carvana (NYSE: CVNA), the industry pioneer for buying and selling cars online, today announced plans to bring Inspection and Reconditioning Center (IRC) capabilities to its existing ADESA Syracuse wholesale auction site. Carvana Brings Inspection and Reconditioning Center Capabilities to ADESA Syracuse

"Integrating IRC capabilities at ADESA Syracuse is another step forward in building a faster, more efficient, more productive Carvana network," said Brian Boyd, Senior Vice President of Inventory at Carvana. "We're excited to keep expanding our team and presence in Central New York as we drive selection and speed for customers locally and nationwide."

Carvana has already begun hiring local team members and expects the integration to create about 200 new good-paying, skilled, and entry-level jobs in inspection, reconditioning, and vehicle fulfillment over time. These roles require no college degree and come with comprehensive benefits. Local candidates can browse open positions, see hourly rates, and apply

"This announcement will mean new, high-quality jobs for Central New Yorkers," said Senator Jeremy Cooney, Chair of the New York Senate Transportation Committee. "Thanks to Carvana's commitment to New York, we are continuing to see increased growth in our upstate communities and a brighter economic future for our entire state."

"Carvana's expansion at ADESA Syracuse is a strong vote of confidence in Central New York's workforce and our region's economic future," said Senator Christopher J. Ryan. "The creation of nearly 200 good-paying jobs—many of which are accessible without a college degree—means more opportunity for local families and a stronger foundation for our community. Investments like this not only grow our economy, they help ensure that people can build a future right here at home."

“Carvana’s expansion in Central New York is a powerful example of how strategic investment can drive economic growth, create good-paying jobs, and strengthen local communities,” said Paul Zuber, Executive Vice President for The Business Council of New York State. “By bringing new inspection and reconditioning capabilities to Syracuse, this initiative not only boosts employment but also reinforces New York’s position as a hub for innovation and modern infrastructure.”

Located in Cicero, New York, ADESA Syracuse has served as a wholesale auto auction for nearly 50 years. Now the facility will also house the teams and tools that drive Carvana retail reconditioning and fulfillment. The site’s approximately 150 acres and more than 6,800 parking spaces offer significant infrastructure to support IRC operations alongside ongoing wholesale auction operations.

The integration will establish a new pool of Carvana retail inventory, giving customers in the Syracuse area access to a broader vehicle selection with delivery options as soon as the next day. Wholesale buyers will benefit from enhanced on-site inspection and reconditioning capabilities and ongoing access to ADESA’s in-lane and digital auction services.

Carvana’s proprietary software platform, CARLI, will power the site’s transition to an IRC-enabled facility, supporting operational efficiency and consistency across its national reconditioning network.
